MOVING IN HOSPITAL

Ready For Business At Jennie Stuart Memorial--Open Tomorrow.

FEW PATIENTS TRANSFERRED

Ten Convalescents Were Sent To Their Homes In Last Few Days.

Everything is bustle and confusion today at the Jennie Stuart Memorial Hospital. The equipment of the Hopkinsville Infirmary is being transferred to the Hospital with any remaining patients, and the Infirmary will quit business. The house has been rented to Mrs. Boxley.

A week ago there were ten patients in the Infirmary, but all but two were able to be removed to their homes and those are not too sick to be transferred if they desire further hospital treatment. These are Mr. C. P. Nolen and Mrs. Hall.

Those discharged during the last few days were Mrs. Ernest Stone, Mr. Morgan, Mr. Cornell, Mrs. Adkins, Mrs. Robert Fuller, Mrs. Geo. Bowles, Mr. and Mrs. Lander Meacham and Miss Daisy Henderson.

The sewer pipe connecting the Hospital with the main line at Seventeenth and Main streets is nearly in and this is the last detail, except cleaning up the outside premises. The water and heating plants have been tested out and everything works satisfactorily.

Mrs. Wanda Williams and her assistants have been busy several days getting the hospital ready for patients. The institution is ready for the formal opening tomorrow, but can handle business today if called upon to do so. Among those who have furnished special wards and rooms in the hospital are the following:

Baptist church, ward northwest corner third floor; Grace Episcopal church, ward southwest corner second floor. Memorial rooms, Dr. R. M. Fairleigh, Dr. L. B. Hickman and Mrs. D. Frankel, furnished by their respective descendants. Also room each by Miss Jennie Glass and Miss Webb Young.

DALTON CO.'S BRICKYARD

Sustains Loss of $5,000 or $6,000 Sunday From Fire In Kilns.

CAUGHT FROM SPARKS

Small Insurance and The Loss Is Heavy and Business Seriously Interrupted.

Sunday afternoon at about one o'clock at the brickyards of the Dalton Bros. Brick Co., a fire which did much damage was started by some sparks flying from one of the kilns where brick was being burned.

The fire was soon under way, owing to the dry condition of the sheds and kilns. Several sheds over the kilns were completely destroyed and practically all of the drying sheds in use were burned up. These sheds were full of green brick, which was totally destroyed. The fire department, though delayed in reaching the fire, did splendid service in checking the conflagration.

The property burned was only partially insured and the loss is estimated at between $5,000 and $6,000.

A large force was put to work yesterday cleaning away the debris and the sheds will be rebuilt at once, on a larger and better scale. This will take about 30 days, but the manufacture of brick will go ahead in the meanwhile.

Young Crick was at work in the cornfield with a one-horse harrow when the mule became fast and started to run off. The harrow was jerked forward and to the front of the harrow, one tooth which stuck in his back, penetrating the kidney. Another tooth entered his head, fracturing his skull. Young Crick was immediately taken to the house and medical aid was soon on hand but his injuries were of such a nature that death ensued Sunday.

TWO KILLED IN L. & N. WRECK

Excursion Train Enroute To Hopkinsville Leaves Track.

SPREADING RAILS CAUSED IT.

Coaches Did Not Leave Rails, But Engine Went Over Embankment.

Two of the train crew were killed and a number of the passengers were injured when an L. & N. excursion train was wrecked at 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning at Moore's switch, between Trenton and Guthrie. Two hundred passenger from Louisville, most of them negroes, were badly shaken up, a score of them suffering broken bones.

Engineer John Haley was cut in two when he was crushed under the engine and Fireman James Webb was so badly scalded that he died shortly after. Engineer George Hampton, of Nashville, who was acting as pilot for the train, was badly scalded and his condition is dangerous.

Engineer Haley was 44 years old and leaves a wife and three children. Fireman Webb was 28 years of age and is survived by his father, Capt. George Webb, passenger conductor from Bowling Green, Ky., to Erin, Tenn., and leaves besides his father his mother and sister, Miss Florence Webb.

They were running a negro excursion train to Hopkinsville, and when backing into Moore the rails began to spread, overturning the engine over a fifteen foot embankment and a coach on top of it. A passenger named Bryant had an arm broken.

The engine, an immense new one, seven tons heavier than those heretofore used, left the track while running about twenty miles per hour, the derailment being caused, it is supposed, either by spreading rails or a broken flange. The engine was demolished and three cars were overturned.

A few hours after the wreck occurred sparks from a passing train set fire to a wheat field belonging to George A. McElwaine, in the edge of Trenton, and destroyed seven acres of shocked wheat, 500 yards of fence and several acres of grass resulting in a considerable loss.

Late in the afternoon another fire, supposed to have been caused by the train, broke out in a fifty-acre wheat field of S. J. Banks, near the town.

In the white coach, which was in the front of the train, were two ladies of this city, Mrs. W. S. Martin and Miss Herbert Holman, daughters of Mr. Chas. E. West. They were not injured.

Should Lawyers Hit Below Belt?

An elderly man of wealth was prosecuted in the Morris Court last week for permitting his house property to be occupied by people of evil repute for immoral purposes. The complaining witness was a minister of the gospel, pastor of one of the parishes of a great church, duly appointed to his cure of souls by its authorities.

Counsel for the defense, evidently conscious of his client's negligence,
to use the mildest possible term, remembered and followed the ancient maxim of a certain class of lawyers
in such situations: "When you haven't any evidence abuse the witnesses for the other side."

So this minister of the gospel, who is trying to do his duty and his Master's work by helping to make the world about him clearer, who has refused to be blinded by the outward whiteness of the sepulcher to the dead men's bones within, is charged on the first pages of the evening papers as a "law violator"
merely because a loose-lipped lawyer
called him a!

Should lawyers hit below the belt?
Are foul blows licensed in the legal game? They are not in any other game. On the football field, on the baseball diamond, on the race track,
even in the brutal prize ring, foul play is instantly penalized, and fatally to the cause of the foul player.

It may be said that a newspaper is not entitled to note and rebuke foul play at the bar, since newspapers daily refer to persons as "crooks,"
"swindlers" and "lawbreakers." Yes, but newspapers do so at risk and peril, of the damage judgment, of the fine, of the jail. The lawyer who hits below the belt runs no such risk. His words are "privileged."

What atrocious license was the legal liberty taken in this particular case may be judged by the fact that the jury refused to be deceived and the lawyer's client was fined $200 on its verdict of "guilty as charged." Yet the mischief of the malignant minister was done. He had been "denounced in open court" and pilloried as a wanton "law violator."

We hear a great deal about the need of "reform of court procedure." When we contemplate the license of lawyers and how they hit below the belt there arises a conviction that the reform should begin with a mending of the manners of the bar, and an enforcement of decency at the bar from the bench.—

KENTUCKIANS TALKATIVE

Growing Use of Telephones
Throughout State is Seen in Report.

That the people of Kentucky believe in conversation seems to be clearly established by a report
just issued by the United States census bureau giving statistics of telephones in the various states for the year 1912.

The report shows that in Kentucky
that year there were 287,807 892
messages, or talks over the telephone,
of which 124,681,052 talks over the Bell line and 163,126,840 over all other systems. In Kentucky the Bell, according to the report has 199,151
miles of wire and all other systems have 153,333 miles. The Bell has 51,185 telephones in Kentucky and all other systems have 79,566 telephones.

The report shows how rapidly the telephone is growing into general use in the bluegrass State. In 1902
the average number of telephones
in use in Kentucky was 21 per 1,000 population. There were 155,482
miles of telephone wire in the State, 46,949 phones in use and the number of telephone talks in Kentucky that year was 143,101 564.

In 1907 the statistics for the State were as follows: Telephones per thousand population, forty miles of wire, 262,691, number of telephones 93,996; number of talks, 276,476,058.

The statistics for 1912 are set forth
as follows: Telephones per thousand population, 56; miles of wire, 352,544;
number of telephones, 130,751; number of talks, 287,807,892.

The statistics are for all telephone systems operating in the State.

The Bloodhounds Myth.

The Richmond Times Dispatch
raises its voice to protest against the wasting of public funds in that State to purchase bloodhounds to be used in pursuit of criminals. The Richmond newspaper avers that blood-hounds are of no use whatever in chasing fugitives, and proves its case
to its own satisfaction.

Only a few days ago certain miscreants set fire to the depot and store at Green Spring, near Richmond, and it was at once suggested to use the bloodhounds owned by the county. The animals were brought out, but could do nothing.
No pain had fallen, time had not intervened for anybody to "cross the trail," but the bloodhounds could not and did not help to solve the mystery.

After describing the episode in great detail the Richmond paper
says:

County officers are losing their time in fooling with these dogs, which never traced anything in their lives except a bone or possibly a rabbit. Let us have done with the bloodhound as a man-chaser.

This is spoken after the test of actual experience, but it is iconoclastic, nevertheless. It is true that we never heard in real life of a real criminal being caught by a bloodhound, but there is a mine of such incidents in the storybooks. Anyway, that statement that blood-hounds can trace nothing but rabbits and bones plainly comes from no lover of dogs.

THE PRICE OF LOVE.

The editor of the Richmond Madisonian has been reading over the report of the State Board of Equalization and is moved thereby to the following reflections:

"The annual farce has again been enacted. The Assessors have assessed, and the State Board has raised the assessment by the Assessor to the extent of $8,428,215. Whenever an emergency exists, ingenuity is equal to the occasion. In this instance having failed to get the Legislature to pass a tax bill increasing the levy, the State was thrown upon its ingenuity, and rose to the dignity of the occasion and raised the assessment of property to the tune of over eighteen million dollars.

"We find that all of the personal property of the State of Kentucky is listed at the low figure of $119,697,138. From this take the exemptions, $80,758,649, and you have a balance left of $38,938,489, representing all forms of personal property, notes, accounts, bonds and everything of a taxable nature except lands and town lots. The total valuation of the State for taxable purposes is $864,273,833. This statement shows that all personal property of whatever kind or description it may be, represents about 4 1/2 per cent. of the total taxable property. Thus it will be seen that personal property is practically escaping taxation, and that the burden of the government is thrown bodily on the shoulders of the landowner."

Possibly the railroads and other corporations may take exception to Mr. Lilly's statement that the landowner pays all of the taxes not paid by the owner of personal property. We seem to recall echoes of something akin to protest over a franchise tax in the not too recent past. But the editor of the Madisonian is on safe ground when he reaches the conclusion that, under Kentucky's tax system, the landowner is the goat, not the wild, rollicking, bewhiskered quadruped that butts in on things that should not concern him, but a staked and tethered sacred official offering, bled each year for the sins of the body politic.

Unfortunately, when the late lamented General Ass was in session, it couldn't see the situation as Mr. Lilly sees it. It loved the farmer. It took occasion at every opportunity to tell the farmer so—and when opportunity didn't exist, it created it.

But nevertheless and notwithstanding, when it adjourned, there remained on the statute books the law which makes the farmer pay practically all of the taxes that are paid.

In other States where the taxation of personal property is distinguishable from confiscation that class of property is known to pay its fair proportion of the taxes.

In States like Kentucky, which refuses to distinguish personal property escapes taxation by one of the other of two simple processes—either it goes into hiding where the Assessor can't find it or its owner indulges in perjury.

The members of the General Ass. knew this, but they were convinced that the farmer didn't. Rather than appear false in their devotion, they increased their professions, and, incidentally, added to the taxation of the one character of property that is not to be concealed. The addition in the taxable value of the farmer's property for this year is, as Mr. Lilly states, a little to the rise of $18,000,000.

In time, Kentucky may have a General Assembly that does not proceed on the assumption that the Kentucky farmer is a plain dampfool. Until then, our tax system will remain unchanged.—Louisville Times.

WHAT TO DO WITH A MILLION

Given That Amount in Dollars, One Man Has Very Definite Idea as to His Course.

The American Magazine has been offering prizes for the best letters entitled "What I Would Do With a Million Dollars." The three prize-winning letters have been published. An extract from one follows:

"Yes, if I had $1,000,000 I wouldn't try to turn it into a billion. And I wouldn't go around building libraries and churches, though nobody thinks more highly of those philanthropies than I do. But I'd seek out old couples who have worked hard all their lives, and I'd see that their last years made up for all the hardships of the years gone by—so that they could take leave of life with a song on their lips instead of a moan. Then I'd search out deserving young couples, who with their little families are trying to make a start. I'd give them just enough of a lift to keep away that disheartenment which is most despairing when it comes at a time when youth should still be dreaming—just enough of a life to keep some of the sweetness of life in their hearts, so they wouldn't grow old and cross and crabby, with their dreams all dead."

PAYS TO SCRATCH THE PIG

There's Pork in Pleasing His Hogship. Says One Who Knows, and Pork Means Money.

Old Twilight shunted a pail of swill into the trough, and reflectively scratched the pig's back. Old Twilight is not the only one in the world who learned that there is pork in scratching.

Little do you think, when you sit down to your breakfast bacon that good men scratched for it. We mossa-backs scratch for it living all the time, and we are proud of it. There is pork in it, and pork is money, and money is gasoline, and gasoline is power, and power is a chattel mortgage, and a chattel mortgage is like the grace of God—it is with us always. Amen!

As soon as I get through writing this, I am going out to the pen to scratch a pig. It helps to make him fat. You have got to please a pig, same as a woman, or she—the pig, I mean—won't reflect credit on you. A pig with a grouch is a dead loss. You might just as well pour your swill into a rat-hole. But please your pig; take half an hour off every day and go out and scratch your pig—"The Klan," in the Toronto Star.

It appears that the bird, which is tame, mounts on the gear-box of the car at Blairgowrie every day, travels to Kirkmichael, and returns in the same manner, apparently enjoying its motor spin.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; also cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by local applications. Send for circular free. P. J. CHENEY, & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

QUELLING THE STORM

By JEAN SHEAR.

Mrs. Albright breathed a long breath of relief. Ten charming children between the ages of six and ten had arrived at her home by ones and twos at the appointed hour to participate in the delights of her young son Henry's birthday party. They had been safely herded up the stairs and there had been relieved of wraps and mysterious parcels; they had reluctantly identified and readopted their several pocket handkerchiefs and then they had filed solemnly down the stairs and had arrived on the scene of the projected festivities. The dreaded moments during which Henry received and examined his birthday gifts had also been passed through with outward calm. Therefore, Mrs. Albright permitted herself to take that long breath of relief.

It is true that Henry had gazed with undisguised scorn at the offering of Mamie Tuttle, aged six—a box of paints with a box of feeble drawings to color—and then his absorption in the marvelous jackknife presented by Walter had made him oblivious to subsequent events, but these were minor difficulties.

"The little dears!" murmured Mrs. Albright tenderly to her niece, who was helping her entertain the small guests. "I am so glad we can make them happy. Isn't that little Beals girl a perfect angel? I think—"

She was interrupted by an angry squeal. The difficulty was near at hand. "Oh, Jane, you must be good to your little brother!" she said to the aggressor.

Jane, desiring to sit by her particular friend, Mary Peck, had calmly dislodged a boy whose presence had interfered with her plans. "He's not my brother," Mrs. Albright, said Jane, with virtuous dignity. "He's a horrid boy, and my mother says I'm not to have anything to do with him."

"Huh!" retorted the aggrieved one. "My mother says your mother can eat her old calling list, and she hopes it chokes her, that's all!"

"No, I don't want to play spin-the-platter," Mamie Tuttle was saying at that moment to Mrs. Albright's niece, who had approached her with blandishments. "No, I don't think games are any fun; they make me hot. Haven't you got any lemonade at your party, Henry?" Mamie Tuttle leaned back languorously and turned her melting glance on Henry with all the coquetry of an experienced person of twenty.

For a moment that small boy halted, indelibly attracted by the novelty of this appeal, but his attention was distracted almost at once by the impious conduct of Walter, who had taken down Henry's favorite sailboat and was removing the sails, mast and all. Instantly party and manners were forgotten in a wave of wrath.

"You give that here!" yelled Henry, with astonishing volume. "Don't you dare to do that, I say! Give it to me!"

"Henry, Henry!" interposed his mother in a shocked voice. But that immaculately clothed youngster had buried himself upon the other boy and had wrenched the precious sailboat from him. Bewildered by this infringement upon etiquette and the sacred laws of hospitality, Walter could think of no better response than to black Henry's eye with his fist.

Three minutes later Mrs. Albright and the niece, whitely determined, were conveying to the bathroom two small boys with tear stained faces and injured noses. The terrified remnant of the guests gazed at one another in awe.

"Boys is so blu-blub-blubby!" finally gasped little Katharine Beals, hiding her face in her arms and bursting into tears.

"Aw, they're all right, sis; quit your crying," consoled her brother, promptly recovering his sang froid at the display of feminine weakness.

The tension being thus relaxed Mary Peck's demure voice was heard making a sensible suggestion. "Why don't they let us eat?" she demanded.

Mrs. Albright, returning after having consigned her son to the ministrations of the second maid, heard these words of wisdom and longing and noted the hopeful stir which they aroused among the other children. Why not adopt small Mary's suggestion? she asked herself. Perhaps the socializing influence of eating in common, of which she had heard at the Woman's club, would accomplish what she had failed to do for these young barbarians, the angels of an hour ago. Henry and Walter, subdued if not regenerated, were hastily recovered the whole party was marshaled to the long table of the sun porch, and in to seconds all signs of storm had disappeared as if by magic. All was bright contentment. One saw there only polite and amiable childhood.

Mrs. Albright's ruffled spirits were soothed. "The little dears!" she murmured to her niece.

Redlight District Defined.

Louisville, Ky., June 27.—Colonization of immoral women into the district bounded by Fifth, Fourteenth, Market and Walnut streets has been completed under police orders issued so directly and carried out so quietly that only residents of the underworld knew what was going on.

It is the belief of Col. Lindsay, Chief of Police, and the Board of Public Safety that the plan will quickly result in lessening of the number of women. Another beneficial result expected to follow the forming of the prescribed quarter is that publicly immoral women will have to give up their residence in other sections of the city.

The underworld had encroached into many places outside of the "red-light" district. An immediate effect of the order requiring all immoral women to live in the section of the city long known as the tenderloin has been their elimination from the night life of Fourth street. After darkness Fifth street is now the deadline on the east and to cross it means arrest.

BILLY SUNDAY'S VERSION OF DAVID AND GOLIATH

Sunday's famous sermon on David and Goliath is in part as follows: All of the sons of Jesse except David went off to war. They left David at home because he was only a kid. After a while David's ma got worried. She wondered what had become of his brothers, because they hadn't telephoned to her or sent word. So she said to David, "Dave you go down there and see whether they are all right."

So David hikes off to where the war is, and the first morning he was there out comes this big Goliath, a big strapping fellow about 11 feet tall, who commenced to shoot off his mouth as to what he was going to do. "Who's that big stiff putting up that game talk?" asked David of his brothers.

"Oh he's the whole works; he's the head cheese of the Philistines. He does that little stunt every day."

"Say," said David, "you guys make me sick. Why don't some of you go out and soak that guy? You let him get away with that stuff." He decided to go out and tell Goliath where to head in.

So Saul said: "You'd better take my armor and sword." David put them on, but he felt like a fellow with a hand-me-down suit about four times too big for him, so he took them off and with nothing but his sling and a rock, put the giant Goliath down to the count. David drew his sword and chopped off his block, and the rest of the gang beat it.

Ingram Crockett of Henderson, now confined in the Eldyville penitentiary, contributes the following poem to the Louisville Herald:

A DOVE'S NEST

(By Ingram Crockett)

The little leaves make joy around
A little room where love is found;
And there is heard a dulcet sound
Of wooing, wooing, wooing.
And there a little cradle swings
To lightest crooning whispering,
And there, so sweet, are mother wings,
And cooing, cooing, cooing.

Some little breezes, wandering by,
Let in a bit of azure sky;
And sunbeams of a golden dye
In wonder softly gleaming;
And where they touch the mother breast
Is iridescence, loveliest,
Love rounded into tender rest
And dreaming, dreaming, dreaming.

DEvised A "WIFELESS FLAT"

Unhappy Bachelor, Driven to Extremes, Made Desperate Though Futile Clutches at Comfort.

A bachelor of Cincinnati has invented and built for himself a "wifeless flat."

This macabre dream of home comfort consists of a single room behind whose various and properly labeled doors are concealed in tabloid form, as it were, the other necessary rooms of a well-appointed apartment.

When bedtime comes the lagoonous flat dweller opens the proper door, swings his bed from its upright position in its closet and goes to sleep in his bedroom. Next morning the bed is swung back and closed into its special closet, another door opened and a dressing table is drawn out for use. The toilet over and all trace of it shut out of sight again, another door opens up a miniature kitchen and pantry, and then another offers a table to be pulled out and breakfasted upon — and so on through the day.

The owner of the flat says that he spent three years planning and perfecting this ideal dwelling place and that he now spends a pleasant wifeless and servantless existence in a four-room apartment devised from what was once but a single 9x12 room. — Southern Woman's Magazine.

CHANGE IN PROFESSION.

That the versatile woman is able to earn a living at many contrasting occupations is proved by the appointment of a famous horsewoman as librarian in the 3,000-volume library of a huge hotel in Manhattan.

Mrs. Emily Beach, who is said to have broken over 1,000 horses in her time and to have educated her orphaned daughter by riding blooded horses in the horse shows and teaching the little daughters of the rich how to ride, has taken charge of this new library, and is reveling in the quiet and the unlimited opportunities for reading.

MODEL PRISONER.

"You remember Dibbert, the terror of the neighborhood?"
"Sure. He shot his wife, set fire to a church and poisoned a horse."
"That's the one. Well, he's going to get out of prison in a few days."
"Well, well! He hasn't been there more'n a year. On what grounds are they letting him go?"
"Good behavior."

COULDN'T DO IT.

"Now, if you'll meet me at my office tonight I'll put you on to a big deal."
"Sorry, old man, but I'm following a continued story in the movies. I must be there tonight or I'll miss an important installment."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

INCLINED TO BE CHARITABLE.

"Your stenographer takes notes very rapidly, but he doesn't seem able to remember what they mean."
"Well," replied Senator Sorghum, "I make speeches very rapidly, and in a few months I can't remember what they mean."

BELLIGERENCY.

"Is that man still devoting his efforts to universal peace?"
"Not exactly. He is still fighting the Demon Rum."

GOOD REASON.

"Why do you call your play, 'The Great Trunk Mystery'?"
"Because I want it to draw packed houses."

FEAR TO SPEAK OWN NAME

Curious Superstition Among Primitive People Described by Traveler and Writer.

In a recent book, "The Lushel Kuki Clan," Lieut. Col. J. Shakespear tells of a curious trait of the Lushels; they have a strong and general dislike to speaking their own names. The author tells of his experience with this strange people, and accounts for that fear in the following manner:

When we first occupied the hills a man would not tell us his name. If asked, he would refer us to some one else, and say, "You tell him." The following explanation of their habit was given by a Lushel: "Lushels are shy of saying the name of their father and their mother and their own name. Because it is their own name, they are shy of saying it. Some people are shy because their names are bad. Their parents' names—because they are their parents they never call them by their names, therefore they are shy of saying them. Their own names, also, they never say, just for that reason, they are shy of saying them. The names of their brothers and friends they are always saying, therefore they are not shy of saying them." Long ago, another explanation was given. When a man kills another, he calls out his own name, "I, Lalman-ga, have killed you!" so that the spirit of the dying man may know whose slave he will be in "Mithi-Khua," the dead man's village; accordingly, it was suggested, it was unlucky for a person to speak his name on a less important occasion.

HISTORIC ENGLISH MANUSCRIPT.

Mr. Hatch, an old Lambeth vestryman, has presented the Lambeth (England) borough council with a number of quaint manuscripts, prints and handbills of old London. The most historic of the gifts is a manuscript by John Gibbon, dated August 4, 1666, entitled "A word of caution to the inhabitants of England, which may be to some a faithful warning to prepare for the great and notable day of the Lord God Almighty, that shall burne like an oven, and which is ready to break forth upon this nation," setting forth that the great fire which had recently devastated London was a judgment upon the city.

SUSPICIOUS.

"What kind of meat have you this morning?" asked the husband, of the butcher.
"The best steak we have ever had, sir," replied the butcher. "Here you are, sir; as smooth as velvet, and as tender as a woman's heart."
The husband looked up and said: "I'll take sausage."—Ladies' Home Journal.

WELL POSTED.

Mrs. Hopkins—How is your little nephew that was sent to you through the mail?

Neighbor—First rate. The doctor says that spot on his back is not a ringworm, but just where the parcel-post man struck him with the cancellation stamp.

SOUNDLY, TOO.

"Why do you call this boisterous song 'The Prizefighter's Lullaby'?"
"Because it describes how he put the other fellow to sleep."

MIXED METAPHORS.

"Remember, 'tis the early bird that catches the worm."
"But he wouldn't if the worm happened to be a late bird."

GOOD THINGS FOR THE HOGS

Prescriptions Given Will Not Cure Cholera, but They Will Keep Animals in Condition.

The following prescriptions will not cure hog cholera, but they will keep the hogs in good condition. Choose one which you will have prepared to give your hogs, say every 60 days, and at any time they seem out of condition:

1—Wood charcoal, one pound; sulphur one pound; sodium chloride, two pounds; sodium bicarbonate, two pounds; sodium hyposulphite, two pounds; sodium sulphate, one pound;
antimony sulphide, one pound. Pulverize thoroughly, mix well and give one

Piney Woods Rooter, 2½ Years Old,
Weight 50 Pounds—Has Been Kept
In Pen and Fed All the Corn It Would Eat for 2½ Months.

Wholespouful to each 200 pounds of live weight of hogs treated once a day
for several days.

2—Sulphur, two pounds; copperas,
two pounds; madder, two pounds;
black antimony, one-half pound; salt-petre, one-half pound; arsenic, two ounces. Mix with 12 gallons of water and give one pint to each hog. This will be sufficient to dose 100 hogs.

3—Salt, four pounds; black antimony, one pound; copperas, one pound; sulphur, one pound; saltpetre,
one-quarter pound; wood ashes, one peck. Pulverize and mix thoroughly, moisten and put enough in a trough to prevent waste and put where hogs can have access to it at all times. If disposed to have cholera, they will eat it very freely; at other times they will eat less, or perhaps none at all.

SUCCESS WITH SMALL FRUIT

Knowledge of Market Requirements,
Executive Ability and Experience Are Necessary.

To successfully harvest and market
a crop of small fruit requires business ability of no mean order.

Because a person is successful in growing fruit it does not necessarily imply that he will make a success of the harvesting and selling part of the business. Still there is nothing about the work that should discourage the uninitiated.

The principal characteristics called into play are, a knowledge of market requirements, executive ability, experience and knowledge as to the characteristics of the different kinds and varieties of fruits.

One of the first things to consider is the market, whether local, semi-local or distant. For long-distance shipping, only those varieties that are noted for firmness and long-keeping qualities should be used, and these must be picked before they are at their highest state of ripeness.

With nearby or local markets, however, the question becomes one of size and quality rather than one of firmness though firmness is desirable in any case. It is often an advantage to grade strawberries and if this is done
it should be done by the pickers as they are removed from the vines. The grade should be made uniform
throughout the package, but the top layers may be turned only down,
greatly enhancing the attractiveness of the fruit. The package should be full.

To oversee a dozen or fifteen pickers is no small task. To secure the best work the overseer should be in the field among the pickers. Among the number will be those who will need watching. It is a good plan to reward the faithful ones at the close of the season. In general, generous treatment in dealing with pickers is returned four-fold in better service rendered.

The growers whose style of culture is up-to-date, that is to say, plenty of room for each plant so that the berries are large and no weeds or grass in the way, so that the berries may be easily and quickly gathered, will usually have no trouble in securing pickers. He has first choice for of course, every one will want to pick where picking is best.

Picking berries is at best a tedious back-aching job. It takes grit to attend to it day by day, hence it is that task should be made as agreeable as possible.

Use for Alfalfa.

Alfalfa can be stored in the silo, but it is much better to make hay of it and put corn in the silo. Alfalfa makes a higher quality of dry feed than shredded corn fodder and dry feed is necessary in addition toilage.

USEFUL TOOL FOR PLANTING

Utah Man Invents Inexpensive Imple-

The Scientific American in describing a planting implement, invented by N. P. Jensen of Ephraim, Utah, says:
The invention has reference more particularly to implements which comprise means for receiving the plant and then setting it into the desired place in the ground. The object is to provide an inexpensive planting implement which can be easily and quickly manipulated which will set the plant

plement is also intended for pressing

in the ground.

VALUABLE HINT FOR FARMER

Droppings From 1,000 Fowls, If Properly Cared For Will Return
Profit of $300 Yearly.

The poultryman or farmer can matterially add to the profits of his business by properly caring for the droppings of his fowls. For example, it is shown that the droppings from 1,000 fowls if preserved without needless loss are worth at least $300 per annum, and this estimate is based on the assumption that less than half of the droppings, or only 30 pounds per hen per year, can be collected.

According to the Maine station, the droppings should be collected daily, and mixed with substances which will
(1) prevent loss of nitrogen, (2) add sufficient potash and phosphoric acid
to make a better-balanced fertilizer,
and (3) improve the mechanical condition of the manure so that it can be applied to the land with a manure spreader.

This can be done as follows: To each 30 pounds of the manure add 10
pounds of sawdust, good dried loam,
or peat, 16 pounds of acid phosphate,
and 8 pounds of kainit. Such a mixture will contain about 1.25 per cent of nitrogen, 4.5 per cent of phosphoric acid and 2 per cent of potash, which,
used at the rate of 2 tons per acre
would furnish 40 pounds of nitrogen, 185 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 80
pounds of potash, and at the present price of fertilizing ingredients is worth about $10 per ton. The mixture would furnish a well-balanced stable fertilizer, which, although not fine enough to work well in drills, can be successfully applied with a manure spreader.
The treated manure should be well sheltered until time to apply to the land—that is, shortly before plowing.

DOES NOT CAUSE SOIL ACID

Doubtful If Small Amount of Land
Plaster Generally Applied Has Any Serious Effect.

The fear that the application of land plaster makes soils acid, is enfolded. At least it is doubtful if the small amount generally applied has any serious and immediate influence upon the acidity of the soil.

This is the belief of E. B. Hart of the College of Agriculture of the University of Wisconsin, who from time to time has carried on numerous experiments to determine the influence of applying land plaster, rock phosphate and other fertilizers to fields
upon which various crop rotations
were followed.

The theory that land plaster applied to soil would make it acid, is based on the assumption that the plants remove from the soil more calcium than sulphur, thereby leaving behind a greater proportion of the acid part of the land plaster. On the contrary, it has been shown that the common cereals, wheat, oats, corn, barley and such other plants as the turnip, rutabaga, cabbage and onion, make positively greater demands for sulphur than for calcium and applications of land plaster for such crops
will tend to make the soils alkaline rather than acid. Such plants as the meadow grasses, clover, alfalfa, sugar beets and tobacco, use more calcium than sulphur and in their case the application of land plaster
would have a tendency toward developing acid soil. Potatoes use about equal amounts of calcium and sulphur, and land plaster could not possibly influence soil reaction in this case.

MEN IN MIND IN HOPKINSVILLE

People of Prominence In The Pearl City of The Penny-royal.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH NO. 28.

Young Man Who Has Practically A Monopoly of Plastering Business.

In a town the size of Hopkinsville it is hard for any one man to enjoy a practical monopoly in a line of business depending upon labor. Yet the young man whose picture is here shown has been for 13 years practically without formidable opposition as a contractor in many kinds of plastering. With hardly an exception, all of the general contractors sub-let to him the plastering of buildings small and large and dismiss from their minds any further concern, knowing that work entrusted to him will be well and promptly done.

Walter R. Stewart, the son of a plastering contractor, was born in Hopkins county, Ky., Feb. 25, 1880, and as a boy acquired his father's trade. In 1896, then 16 years old he came to Hopkinsville and began work at his trade with the Forbes Mfg Co. In 1901 he became an independent contractor, but still retains a working arrangement with that company.

During the 18 years he has been in the city, Mr. Stewart has plastered square acres of walls. He has worked on all of the school buildings, the State Hospital additions, all banks, and practically all of the business houses and hundreds of residences. He has practically plastered the whole town. At present he works from 5 to 12 men and is busy all of the time. He works with his men and on the best jobs does his own finishing. He makes a specialty of stucco work, tile bath rooms and other high class work. His territory has extended as far as Springfield and Paris, Tenn., and covers all adjoining Kentucky counties.

Mr. Stewart invests his earnings in real estate and owns several good pieces of property. His home is on Campbell street, where he lives with his family, consisting of a wife and three children.

He is a member of the Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows and Woodmen Lodges.

Nearly Smothered.

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augusta Lomax, of this place, writes: "I had smothering spells every day, so bad I expected death at any time. I could not sit up in bed. I suffered from womanly troubles. My nerves were unstrung. I had almost given up all hope of ever being better. I tried Cardui, and it did more good than anything I had ever taken. I am better now than I ever expected to be." Thousands of ladies have written similar letters, telling of the merits of Cardui. It relieved their headache, backache and misery, just as it will relieve yours, if you will let it. Try Cardui.

About the First Public Library.

Thebes, in the time of Ramesses II., established and supported the first public library, and the records of the monuments show that its director was a high official named Amen-em-an. He appears also to have been a literary light, and corresponded with Pentaur, who was the popular author of the "best sellers" of his time.

Good Hint.

This is a valuable secret for the traveler, for a small bottle will protect him from the vermin often found in hotel beds. No bedbug will venture between sheets so scented and a few drops of oil that is required.

MUCH DAMAGE BY CURCULIO

Just Before Buds Open, Plum Trees Should Be Thoroughly Sprayed—London Purple Is Favored.

(By FREDIE L. PUTNAM.)

Plums, too often an uncertain crop on account of curculio, may be easily grown every year unless destroyed by frost. This is especially true of the old damson plums, the rich flavor of which is too little known in the scramble for the newer Japanese varieties.

Early in March while the ground is still frozen hard, mulch heavily with horse manure. This serves the double purpose of maintaining fertility and keeping the frost in the ground until the spring is sufficiently advanced that swelling buds will not get caught in a frost.

Just before the buds open the trees should be thoroughly sprayed. The writer has for a number of years used London purple without injurious effects to the foliage, a dessert spoonful to ten gallons of water.

Some of the other arsenates are said to be less injurious to the leaves, and are especially recommended for the peach, as arsenate of lead, the best, used in proportion to two pounds, 50 gallons of water, or paris green, one pound to 150 gallons, or 200 gallons of water.

By spraying just before the buds open and just after the blossoms fall, there is no danger of poisoning bees, and experience shows it to be best also for the fruit. The second spraying should be followed by a third, two weeks later.

Small trees may be protected by daily jarring and gathering the beetles as they fall into sheets prepared for the purpose, but with large trees this method is scarcely practicable.

EFFECT OF THINNING PLUMS

Burbank Tree Bears Heavy Crop Annually—Little Care Required Except at Pruning Time.

(By MRS. H. H. WOODWARD.)

We have a small Burbank plum tree in its third year of bearing, from which we thinned two bushels of young fruit to prevent the breaking of the limbs. Fully as much fruit remained and ripened beautifully.

This plum bears a very heavy crop every year. That is its only fault—setting such a heavy crop that it causes the death of the tree unless severely thinned.

Those who have not the courage to properly thin the trees often find them dead the following spring.

It is a Japanese plum originated by Luther Burbank of California; and though he has originated many remarkable plums, this seems to be the best, all things considered.

It is perfectly hardy everywhere, requiring little care except close care when pruning and thinning the fruit.

The tree is not handsome, being of sprawling growth and long, slender branches, and being flat on top and broad rather than tall.

The fruit grows in clusters, six or seven plums frequently being found together. It is a coppery-red color, with yellow spots showing through, and the side toward the sun takes on a decided purple shade if left till fully ripe.

The pulp is deep yellow, coarse but juicy, and the pit is very small.

The plums are fine for use when fresh, but also can well, the pulp adhering to the pit so firmly that they retain their shape well when cooked.

Planting Fruit Trees.

The soil should preferably be in good tilth before planting, and the holes for the trees should be dug sufficiently wide and deep to receive all of the roots of the tree. The harder the soil the wider and deeper the holes should be.

Fill in with loose, mellow earth, packing the soil well around the roots. Avoid using sod or any coarse material, or the leaving of air pockets, as either will cause a drying out around the roots, which is detrimental to the tree. Use care and you will be repaid with a good stand of trees.

Cow Is Very Susceptible.

The dairy cow is very susceptible to external influences. Give her the right kind of care and feed and she will give you the right kind of work in return.

PUMP WATER

Pure gurgling, rippling water, fresh from deep ice cold wells, but you will need a Pump with which to do this.

After many years of experience in the Pump business, we have come to the conclusion that the "Red Jacket" So Easy to Fix and the Myers Deep and Shallow Well Pump, will cover any and all conditions that may arise in connection with elevating water, either by hand, Wind Mill or Gasoline Engine. This is due to the Mechanism of the Cylinder which is the heart of a Pump. Without "efficiency" in the Cylinder a Pump is worthless. That is where and how the Red Jacket and the Myers have established their reputation.

If you contemplate installing a system of Water Works, before doing so, we invite you to examine these pumps. It will be worth your while, besides save you Time and Money.

The New Marriage Law.

The new marriage license law passed by the last Kentucky Legislature now in effect makes the securing of a marriage license more difficult.

Heretofore when the clerk issuing a marriage license were satisfied as to the age of the contracting parties, nothing further was asked of things are now different when a couple, old or young, steps up to the counter and calls for the document that will unite them.

After the groom gives his age to the clerk (and by the way the bride has to be present and answer for herself) he will be required to give the names of his parents, place of birth, occupation, and whether single or divorced. To make the matter just a little more binding as well as difficult, the clerk may in his discretion, require the execution of a bond in the sum of $100 with good security. Both prospective bridegroom and bride-to-be must also state the condition of their health.

The new law is designed after the stringent requirements of the Michigan statute. While it is thus made difficult and at times embarrassing to procure license to wed, the laxity of the divorce laws, remains the grind of the divorce mill steadily increases.
